Germany To Offer Peace

Expected To Make Offer To Return To Status Quo

London, June 21—Endeavors of central powers to conclude peace with Russia on the basis of no annexations and no indemnities having proved abortive, it is expected, according to high authority, that Germany will make an immediate attempt to obtain peace before the end of July. The proposals will probably be directed toward re-establishing territorial boundaries in Europe as they existed before the war. Crops in Germany are suffering severely from drought and all in-

Chairman of Trustees Votes Down Teachers' Applications For Increase in Salaries.

The trustees of Blairmore school district held a special meeting last evening to consider applications from teachers for increase of salaries. There were present, Chairman Beebe, S. Mason, J. F. Hunter and W. J. Bartlett.

Applications were read from the principal, C. R. Pearson, and Misses Fulton, Darrach, Keith and Foster, each stating their willingness to sign up for another year on condition of a $100 raise in year's salary.

A motion made by J. F. Hunter and seconded by W. J. Bartlett, that the principal application be accepted, was declared defeated.

A second motion, to the effect that all applications be accepted, granting the $100 increase all round, was also declared defeated.

Blairmore has the reputation of paying the smallest teachers' salaries in the province of Alberta, and that in a district which should be in the best possible position of any part of the province to pay respectable stipends.

At the meeting yesterday it was pointed out that both principals and teachers in other parts of the province, although receiving salaries at the present time which are considerably larger than those paid here, are demanding increase of salaries for the coming year, and as there is a great shortage of teachers it is reasonable to expect to have to pay substantial retentions. Men of the town, who are at present a party to the industrial up for greater incomes, are voicing themselves as opposed to the raising of salaries of employees of our most important institution.

A letter was received from Miss Sara McCulm, of Killam, accepting a position as primary teacher for the coming year.

The ordination and induction service will be held on Thursday evening next at 8.00, when

Rev. Mr. Kennedy, of Maledo; Rev. W. F. Burns, of Lethbridge; Rev. D. Ferguson, of Calgary; Rev. D. K. Allan, of Coleman, and other preachers will be present. Rev. Mr. Kennedy will be the preacher and address the new pastor, while Rev. Mr. Allan, as moderator, will address the people. A meeting of the presbytery will be held in the afternoon at 3.00

The Professor's Bulletin
No. 25. "No smoking NOR spitting allowed." In this notice, the form "nor" would be correct if the wording were, "Neither smoking nor spitting allowed;" for "neither" and "nor" are two words which, with few exceptions, must be used together. However, in such prohibitory notice as the above, introduced by the adjective "no," the form of the conjunction should be "or" rather than "nor;" for it is understood that the introductory "no" negatives both "smoking" and "spitting." Having clearly grasped that idea, you will see that the use of "nor" in the above notice is really equivalent to the employment of a "double negative."

A Soldier's Prayer

[The following beautiful verses were found on the body of a dead soldier in France. While everything indicates that they were written by a soldier—possibly by the dead man from whom they were taken—it does seem a pity that the authorship of such beautiful lines may never be established.]

We had forgotten You or very nearly,
You did not seem to touch us very nearly;
Of course we thought about You now and then,
Especially in any time of trouble,
We knew that You were good in time of trouble,
But we are very ordinary men.

And there were always other things to think of:
There's a lot of things a man has got to think of—
His work, his home, his pleasure, and his wife;
And so we only thought of You on Sunday,
Sometimes, perhaps, not even on a Sunday,
Because there's always lots to fill one's life.

And all the while, in street or lane or byway,
In country lane, in city street or byway,
You walked among us, and we did not see.
Your feet were bleeding as You walked our pavements.
How did we miss Your footprints on our pavements?
Can there be other folk as blind as we?

Now we remember over here in Flanders
(It isn't strange to think of You in Flanders);
This hideous warfare seems to make things clear.
We never thought about You much in England,
But now that we are far away from England
We have no doubts, we know that You are here.

You helped us pass the fest along the trenches,
Where in cold blood we waited in the trenches
You touched its ribaldry and made it fine,
You stood beside us in our pain and weakness,
We're rejoiced to think You understand our weakness,
Somehow it seems to help us not to whine.

We think about You kneeling in the garden,
Ah, God! the agony of that dread garden;
We know You prayed for us upon the cross;
If anything could make us glad to bear it,
'Twould be the knowledge that You would be to bear it,
Pain—death—the uttermost of human loss.

Though we forget You, You will not forget us;
We feel so sure that You will not forget us,
But stay with us until this dream is past;
And so we ask for courage, strength, and pardon,
Especially, I think, we ask for pardon,
And that You'll stand beside us to the last.

Mr. Flouret, one of the men called by the French government at the outbreak of the war, is home on 21 days furlough. He has been at the front over two years.

The memorial service held in the Methodist church on Sunday evening last was largely attended. About forty members of the local Oddfellows' lodge assembled at their hall and paraded to the church, where they listened to an appropriate sermon delivered by Rev. A. J. Law. The village of Bellevue, with a population of not more than seven hundred, has contributed 117 men to the fighting forces. Of this number 34 are members of the Oddfellows' local lodge, of whom three have already paid the supreme sacrifice.

Dr. Rose and party returned the early part of the week from the upper North Fork and leave tomorrow for the Elk Valley.

Soldiers Are Learning to Farm

A "Census of Intentions" Now Being Taken at the Front

While Private Citizen Smith and Private Citizen Brown are discussing and wondering whether the returned soldier will go in for farming, Private Soldier Smith and Private Soldier Brown are doing it.

Not till the able-bodied men return can we tell how many soldiers are likely to take up land and farm it. The chances are that the number will be large, if the men are convinced that the schemes for helping them will be so developed and worked as to offer a clear hope of success.

A census is now being taken among Canadian soldiers overseas, and so this it should be possible to base an estimate of the number agriculturally inclined.

For the purpose of the National Service Commission includes spaces to be filled up with each man's name, age, rank and regimental number, P.O. address before enlistment and Province. Each soldier is then asked to answer the following questions:

"Which are you, married, single or widower?"

"Name and address of last employer before you enlisted?"

"How many dependents have you? State relationship, sex and age of each."

"Have you a trade or profession? If so, what?"

"Is your old position open for you on your return to your home in your condition?"

"Do you wish to take your discharge in Great Britain?"

"Do you propose to make your home in Canada after the war?"

"Do you wish to take up farming as an occupation?"

"Have you ever worked on a farm? If so, how long?"

"How much money do you expect to have at your disposal on your return to Canada?"

"Do you desire to take advantage of any available scheme of assisted agricultural settlement?"

"If so, what province do you prefer to settle in?"

"And would you, if necessary, to gain experience, work for prevailing wages on a farm after your return, providing your dependents were the meanwhile given the same support as they now receive?"

Meanwhile, the men already back among us are those who have been invalided home. Men recovering from an illness, or disabled seriously enough to prevent their return to the firing line, do not at first feel like taking up the strenuous life of a farm.

Nevertheless, the vanguard of the military farming force is already on the spot. Seven months ago, four returned soldiers in Alberta enrolled themselves as students in one of the Provincial Agricultural Schools at Vermilion.

Today, the records of the Military Hospitals Commission show that 75 men have had their applications granted for agricultural training, besides several passed by the Disabled Soldiers' Training Boards and awaiting the commission's approval. Of these 75, as many as 37 are in Alberta, 22 in Saskatchewan, 14 in Manitoba and the other two in British Columbia. A considerable proportion are specializing in farm mechanics.

The Training Board, it may be explained, consists of a Vocational Officer, a Medical Officer, and a third member, generally representing the Provincial Commission established to help returned soldiers find employment. When a man is found unable, owing to any effect of his service, to take up his former occupation, he may claim the privileges of the Government's Re-education scheme. That is, he is entitled to receive free training for a new occupation, along with free maintenance for himself and his family while the training lasts, and for a month longer.

The number of returned men who have gone out on the land independently, is unknown, but is probably large. For instance, the Medical Hat Branch of the Alberta Provincial Commission sends the names of 11 returned soldiers from that district alone, who are known to have taken up agriculture. Their nominal disabilities are most varied: Two suffer from shell shock; one has defective eyesight; one is short of two fingers; three, including a man with one hand, are war-wounded.

At father's farm, and a fourth has gone to the farm of another relative. Three have homesteads of their own. One of these, by the way, intends taking a course of instruction in Gas Tractor Engineering presently. There are men working for other farmers, and one has taken up fruit and chicken farming in British Columbia.

A similar story, doubtless, might be told of many other districts.

To provide for the increasing number of returned soldiers desiring an agricultural training, the government of Alberta has arranged to keep one of the Provincial Schools of Agriculture in operation throughout the year.

Ordinary students, have been placed in the schools are closed from April 1 to November 1.

The school chosen is situated at Olds, 58 miles north of Calgary, on the Edmonton line. There, the men will receive twelve months of instruction, either continuously for a summer and a winter, or in two winter courses, separated by an interval which they can spend on a farm.

In Saskatchewan the commission has arranged that the returned men will be trained at the Agricultural College of the Province, at Regina.

Courses of instruction, shorter and more intensive than those provided for ordinary students, have been planned for the ex-soldiers.

In Manitoba, the Military Hospitals Commission has located over the old Agricultural College at Winnipeg. There soldiers will be able to get instruction and practice in many branches of land work.

Poultry-raising will probably be the most popular of the work, with the co-operation of the Produce Association of Canada. A deputation from that body, headed by a man in Ottawa the other day, and pointed out that there was a considerable lack of poultry raisers in the marketing end of the business—for example, in egg testing and grading; and in the grading and packing of poultry.

The old College at Winnipeg is equipped with green-houses, for winter gardening. There is also a Machinery Hall, 100 feet square, where men will be taught to use and repair all the machinery of all kinds. Men totally unqualified are in great demand, especially in the West, where tractor farming has been developed on the largest scale. The Winnipeg representatives of big implement houses are co-operating in the work of instruction, by the free loan of tractors, threshing machines, gasoline engines and other modern farm appliances.

The great re-education centre for Ontario, at Guelph, just taken over as going concern by the Military Hospitals Commission from the provincial government, is fully equipped for the most thorough agricultural training.

The property covers 850 acres, nearly all available for this use, and a great proportion of it already under cultivation. There is a large greenhouse, for gardening under glass a model dairy barn; up to date machinery; and live stock, of all kinds, modern equipment for animal husbandry.

Wet Feet Didn't Do It

General Rules to Observe in Order to Ward Off Colds

We all know about wet feet and drafts, but these are only two ways of taking cold, and many people are not in the least susceptible to either of them.

The first step is to study yourself and find out to what you are most susceptible. Here are some of the most common causes for colds: Bad air, crowded rooms, overheated or underheated houses, too heavy clothes, so that one becomes easily overheated in a warm room, over-eating, fatigue, damp clothing and chills.

A little common sense will teach us to which of these causes our colds are attributable. If it is bad air, avoid crowded cars as much as possible. If it is fatigue, that weakens your resistance, take extra care of yourself and go to bed early. If you are over-eating, eat lightly and take something very hot to drink. Rest, warmth and a good sleep will ward off many a cold.

"What is the rod of affliction?" asked the Sunday school teacher of his class of little boys, whose father has had fever every August.

Man of business—I can spare you five minutes, but you know, my time is money.

Gentleman of Leisure—I shall be happy to take it in that form, sir.

"Didn't her constant singing in the flat annoy you?"

"Not so much as the constant flat in her singing."

"Here's a sailor says he raised chickens on the voyage. Where do you suppose he did the world through failure to enact a penalty in kind."

"In the highway, of course."

How to Stop German Atrocities

Concentrated Pictorial by The Allies Might Have the Desired Effect

The growing certainty that Germany cannot win the war has not made her rulers, her army or her mettle any the less disposed to commit atrocities. On the contrary, the frightfulness of 1917 is being, all records for the previous year.

At sea we have the sinking of hospital ships; on land, the unparalleled devastation of the evacuated regions of France and the detention of all their residents as "servants" for German soldiers. We will not stop to qualify these crimes whose authors are plainly impervious to moral verdicts. But why are they not deterred by the certainty of their exposure? We believe that the question is best answered by asking another: Why have the Allies never yet issued any collective statement, denouncing the crimes which they intend to punish and outlining the penalties which they intend to exact? Their complete silence is rendered the more suggestive by the contrast between their own fairly outspoken language used by the spokesmen of individual governments in their own countries. Atrocities in England have been sternly commented on at Westminster by the late premier and other statesmen. In France, more sternly denounced by French ministers in the French parliament. We are not sure that the British or Russian ministers have gone in their turn; but even if they have gone as far as the face of the earth, every diplomatist in the face is that none of these various statements have been able to elicit any real action from the alliance. From that fact the Germans draw an inevitable inference, and their anxiety to continue and multiply their atrocities.

The question is now centering on an acute phase. The devastation which the Germans wrought in the country districts of Picardy and Flanders, tended to the populous Lens mining district. Behind this stretches the great Lille-Koubaix-Tourcoing industrial area (the most important in France), and immediately behind it, the industrial area of Belgium, and two burning together (and geographically they are to a great extent one district) the provinces of Brabant and Flanders, on the continent of Europe, Westphalia alone excepted.

From what we have happened in Lens is evidently the present intention of the Germans, if they are forced back through the whole of it. How can this be prevented? The methods of threats by individual governments are totally ineffective. A more definite step of this kind yet taken was the resolution passed by the French senate on March 31, after the devastation of Picardy. It has not deterred the enemy from proceeding to carry out the far worse devastation of Lens. Nor do we look with any hope on a resort to reprisals. Our reprisals for the sinking of the Gloucester Castle—an air raid on Freiburg—have impressed us, to be quite frank, as at once irrelevant and ineffective. There is very little scope for developing this line; the few large German towns open to such attacks are not in parts of Germany which have any real voice in shaping German policy; and it remains as true as ever it was, that the game of reprisals is one which a conscienceless power like Germany can always play better than we. We do not believe that the Freiburg raid will stop attacks on hospital ships; and we are prepared to hear at any moment that another such attack has taken place.

There is no way out of this stage except to prevent the infliction of preventable crimes on our populations and our ships, but the way of a collective announcement by the Allies. It ought to have been taken long ago, and the world would have been spared many evils if it had been. The number of the Allied nations and their interests explain and perhaps excuse the failure to take it; but it ought now to be possible to overcome that difficulty. The declarations should be at once comprehensive and specific; it ought to catalog and denounce the whole extent of enemy criminality, and it ought, at least for future crimes, to name specific penalties. The latter should be as far as possible, of a congruous nature. We are complained of, the penalty for the illegal destruction of Allied towns and factories might be the destruction of twice the amount of similar German properties. Two objections are commonly urged against this course. One is, that events may not permit us to carry our threats out. To this we would reply that a threat does not depend for its effect on the certainty that it will be executed. The mere fact that the Allies have publicly pledged themselves to do their best to enforce specific retribution would, at this stage of the war, mean a very great deal, and would be much likelier to influence German conduct than anything else. Secondly, it may be urged that two wrongs do not make a right, and that a post-war destruction of Westphalia in retribution for Lille and Belgium would be a sorry business. To this we would answer, if the threat worked (as we believe it would), no such destruction would become necessary; whereas if it did not, and the Germans carried out to the bitter end the crimes on which they have now embarked, the moral damage suffered by the world through failure to enact a penalty in kind would far outweigh the material damage involved in its execution.—The London Chronicle.

Selling by Pictures

The Camera as an Aid to Selling Live Stock

It is on record that men and women have at various times captured each other for matrimonial purposes by the medium of photographs. At least a photograph was the beginning of it; what the end was—but that is another story!

If photography can be turned to profit in advertising in the manner noted above, the idea suggests itself that farmers could certainly make good use of the camera in letting prospective buyers know the types of cattle, horses, hogs and sheep they had for sale.

A contributor to the Country Gentleman has this to say regarding farm photography:

"My camera has helped me in selling calves and pigs. Whenever I have a surplus of young stuff to offer I take some individual and group pictures of the animals, and stock up with plenty of clear-cut prints from the negatives, which I can submit to farmers and breeders whose correspondence I attract by means of advertisements relative to my sales offerings."

"Often a man will purchase a Holstein calf or a Berkshire pig on the strength of the pictures, which I send to him, when otherwise the animals would not interest him unless he saw them in person. In this way the picture answers as a second-hand visit to the farm to inspect the livestock."

Then there is the personal satisfaction that a farmer gets in looking through a picture album showing his farm's livestock in different stages of development. One set of pictures may represent the buildings before and after they have been improved. Another lot may illustrate the improvement in crop yields and productivity of different fields. Others may demonstrate the advances accomplished in grading up and improving the herds and flocks. The camera permits the farmer to gather pictorial representations of improvements made from year to year. All this material would be of value for advertising purposes if he ever desired to sell his farm.

A woman gets almost as much satisfaction out of a good cry as a man does out of a good laugh.

For Blinded Soldiers And Sailors

The Good Work Being Carried On at St. Dunstan's Hostel

His Majesty the King has just forwarded to Sir Arthur Pearson a check for 500 pounds to be paid into the fund for the After-Care of Blinded Soldiers and Sailors. This is a generous and practical outcome of His Majesty's recent visit to the Regent's Park Hostel, which is mentioned in the report of the second year's work now just published.

"The sure recital of the names of the distinguished visitors to St. Dunstan's during the past twelve months would more than fill this little booklet," it is said. "It must, however, be mentioned that His Majesty the King visited another visit to the Hostel shortly before this report was prepared. It was an entirely informal surprise visit, and His Majesty expressed himself to Sir Arthur Pearson as greatly gratified with the very marked improvements and advances since the last occasion on which he saw his blinded soldiers and sailors at work and play. The King visited every workshop and classroom, and cheerfully defying a chill drizzle of sleet, went down to the farthest corner of the poultry farm."

Her Majesty the Queen has also visited her continued interest in St. Dunstan's in many kind and considerate ways.

The gracious Patroness of St. Dunstan's, Her Majesty Queen Alexandra, has during the past year, as always, shown the warmest interest in the activities of the brave, blind men. Field Marshal Lord French under whom many of the men at St. Dunstan's were in many kind and considerate ways.

General Sir William Robertson, Chief of Imperial General Staff, and Lord Derby, Commander-in-Chief of the Forces, were also during the last twelve months visitors to St. Dunstan's. A special mention must be made."

Canadian Cattle

Explains Prohibition of Importation Into Great Britain

Minister of Agriculture, Protheroe, replying to the British House of Commons to questions put to the government on the subject by H. H. Greenwood, reviewed the circumstances which led to prohibition of importation into the United Kingdom of cattle from Canada. He continued:

"Strong representations on this subject, but more particularly concerning the stigma cast on Canadian livestock, were made to me by the Canadian ministers during their recent visit here. Canada disputes the genuineness of the cases on which prohibition was originally founded, and without doubt the Dominion has been almost entirely free from foot and mouth disease and pleuro-pneumonia. Canadian feeling, therefore, resents the imposition of importation control, as I am advised by the chief veterinary officer of the board of agriculture, he justified on the ground of health. Cattle bred and reared in Canada and leaving that country for the first time by direct shipment to a British port ought not to be excluded under the Diseased Animal Act of 1886. I cannot say whether, or under what conditions, Canadian cattle of the kind indicated might hereafter be permitted to enter this country except for slaughter at port. When farmers are asked to reduce their livestock, permission is plainly impossible, but the prohibition rests largely upon the agricultural policy of the United Kingdom, rather than on the risk of disease."

"I was called out of bed at three o'clock this morning to subscribe to a liberty loan."

"How's that?"

"A friend of mine got pinched and I had to lend him the money for his cash bail."

"Do you ever run across any of the old friends on your automobile trips?"

"Not if they have sense enough to get out of the way."

"Are you economizing at your home?"

"No. We're simply eating less for the same money."

Is Lord Kitchener Alive?

Is Lord Kitchener now a prisoner in Germany? This, at least, is the conclusion that many friends of Mrs. C. Fellows, of Calgary, have drawn from a letter received by the latter from her nephew, now a prisoner in Germany. He was formerly an officer on the Hampshire, on which Lord Kitchener sailed on fatal journey to Russia.

Mrs. Fellows' nephew was supposed to have been drowned with the sinking of the Hampshire. He had seen much service in the British navy prior to sailing with Lord Kitchener and was holding a post of importance on the official staff of the vessel at the time of departure from Russia. He was not heard of for a year or more, and was believed to be dead. A letter from him in his own handwriting tells that he is a prisoner in Germany.

"I tell you would give $10,000 to know who is a prisoner here with me. I would tell you if it were not for the fact that my letter would be destroyed if I did."

These are the words written by the officer which have caused the belief among his friends in Calgary that Lord Kitchener is referred to, especially in view of the fact that the young man was an officer on the vessel in which Kitchener was supposed to have lost his life, and because he himself was supposed to have been drowned and was not known to be alive or to be a prisoner of the Germans until a few weeks ago.

The information was received by Mrs. Fellows, who is a resident of Elbow Park, Calgary.

The officer who wrote the mysterious message which conveys the impression was formerly a resident of Vancouver, B.C.

A Belgian Children's Fund in Holland

The committee of the "Œuvre de la Sainte-Enfance Belge" in Holland, moved by the alarming and ever increasing mortality among the little children in Belgium, have since August, 1916, and with the permission of the German authorities organized the bringing of starved, emaciated, sickly and ailing little ones from Belgium into Holland, where they are cared for, housed, intensively fed, medically attended and clothed for a period averaging six weeks, until they are restored to health. They are then returned to their parents in Belgium, having gained in weight some 2 to 4 lbs. per week.

Unfortunately it is not possible to do more for lack of funds, for there are at the present moment 15,000 or more children waiting in Belgium for their turn to go to Holland, and the number increases weekly and especially since the deportations of slavery. Only a partial alleviation of the sufferings of these poor little ones is possible, but we trust the appeal for the funds made in Canada for the carrying on of this work and perhaps extending it, will not be made in vain.

From the point of humanity the little children of Belgium should come before all in obtaining sympathy and relief, and you need only picture to yourself what you would do, were your child dying of starvation, to decide whether you will assist in this work.

From the point of view of policy, remember that these children represent Belgium's future, and that this generation will have to build up the Belgium to come. How can it be done with a race of children whose most important years have been passed in conditions of starvation and sickness?

All donations to be sent to the Belgian Consul-General, Ottawa, (Ont.), (car marked "Œuvre de la Sainte-Enfance Belge.")

That the proposals agreed on by the miners of the district with R. F. Green, M.P., are likely to go into effect if the government takes charge of the mines is the opinion among the union officials. This is considered a significant view by the men and is more than likely possible as the proposals were put forward by Mr. Green himself and following their acceptance by the miners would probably form the basis for the report presented by him to the government. So far as the men themselves are concerned the management or control of the mines is not a factor of great importance and they will comply with the demands of the government as they would be the operators in control.

The transport Annam, of 6,075 tons, was torpedoed and sunk in the Ionian Sea on June 11th, while proceeding under escort.

As they speed poor humans home.
You spied for the Day, you lied for the Day,
And woke the Day's red spleen.
Monster, who asks God's aid Divine,
Then strewed His seas with the glassy mine;

Not all the waters of all the Rhine
Can wash thy foul hands clean.
You dreamed for the Day, you schemed for the Day,
Watch how the Day will go.

Slayer of age and youth and prime
Defences slain for never a crime
Thou art steeped in blood as a hog in slime,
False friend and cowardly foe.

You have sown for the Day, you have grown for the Day,
You are in the Harvest red;
Can you hear the groans and the awful cries?
Can you see the heap of slain that lies,
And sightless turned to the flame-split skies

The glassy eyes of the dead?
You have wronged for the Day, you have longed for the Day
That is the awful flame.
The nothing to you that hill and plain
Yields heads of dead men amid the grain;
That widows mourn their loved ones slain,
And mothers curse thy name.

Plan Ten Classes Of Conscripts

The following official explanation of the selective conscription act has been given out by the government: It is called the military service act of 1917. This is the name given the similar measure in Great Britain and New Zealand.

Sir Robert Borden's bill commences with the repeal of the compulsory service provisions of the militia act passed in 1904.

It recites also the clauses of that act which render the militia liable to be sent for service in or out of Canada for the defense thereof.

It then proceeds to explain that owing to voluntary enlistment of those who otherwise would be producers in Canada and to the necessity of maintaining production at the highest possible limit under such circumstances, the drafting of men as provided in the Militia Act is unwise and imprudent and that the men now required should be secured by process of selection.

The bill provides for securing reinforcements which unless parliament further authorizes are not to exceed 100,000 men.

It sets out ten distinct classes from which drafts may be selected. These classes will be called out in the order named. They are as follows:

Class 1.—Those who have attained the age of 20 years and were born not earlier than the year 1894 and are unmarried or are widowers but have no children.

Class 2.—Those who were born in the years 1889 to 1893, both inclusive and are unmarried or are widowers who have no children.

Class 3.—Those who are born in the years 1884 to 1888, both inclusive and are unmarried or are widowers but have no children.

Class 4.—Those who have attained the age of 20 years and were born not earlier than the year 1894 and are married or are widowers who have child or children.

Class 5.—Those who were born in the years 1889 to 1893, both inclusive and are married or are widowers who have child or children.

Class 6.—Those who were born in the years 1884 to 1888, both inclusive and are married or are widowers who have child or children.

Class 7.—Those who were born in the years 1879 to 1883, both inclusive and are unmarried or are widowers who have no child.

Class 8.—Those who were born in the years 1874 to 1878, both inclusive and are married or are widowers who have child or children.

Class 9.—Those who were born in the years 1872 to 1875 both inclusive and are unmarried or are widowers who have no child.

Class 10.—Those who were born in the years 1872 to 1875 both inclusive and are married or are widowers who have child or children.

(2) For purposes of this act a man married after the 1st day of 1917 shall be deemed to be unmarried.

(3) Any class except class 1 shall include men who are transferred therefrom and who have been provided and who have come within class 1 since the previous class was called out.

(4) The order in which these classes are described in this section shall be the order in which they may be called out on active service provided the governor in council may divide any class into sub-classes in which case sub-classes shall be called out in order of age beginning with the youngest.

(5) The governor-in-council may from time to time by proclamation call out for active service any or all of the classes of men described in sec. 4 and all men within class or sub-class so called out shall, from the date of such proclamation be deemed to be soldiers.

Members of the tennis club are working hard to get the courts in shape, and it is expected that there will be a large class of learners attending the evening sessions. With the tennis and basketball on the school grounds, together with the new fencing and grove of newly planted trees, the grounds present quite a good appearance.

A baseball match in Cowley between the married and single men, on Saturday night, was carried off by the marrieds by a score of 10 to 5. The battery for the bachelors were Russell, Smyth, P. and Bruce Hodgson. C. It is hoped that this will be kept up, as there are few enough happenings of interest since the exodus of young men to the front.

Germany Near Ruin

London, June 20.—Attempts of German business men to convert all kinds of holdings into currency of neutral countries, which are causing a slump in the price on the market, continue to be reported. It is declared in many quarters that the German financial structure is nearing a wreck, which has been impending since the United States entered the war. This event, it is believed, smashed all belief of neutrals that Germany had any chance to win. Even the Vorparische points out that the continuance of the war injures Germany's ruin.
